

Why is my header file not included?

If you are using operations of an imported file and generate code for your model, the include statement might be missing from the generated code, leading to compiler errors. The reason for this is that you have to model such dependencies explicitly in your model. The code generator won't introduce such include statements by itself.

See Dependencies on how to model such dependencies.